7. Fireworks on Premises Ordinance (PD)

Acting City Attorney Matt Hutchins- Draft brought to committee: Property owners can be cited for civil infraction as it becomes their responsibility of the activity on their physical property. Preferred option is to cite the individual that is physically lighting fireworks but this approach has been minimally effective as it's challenging to determine who is responsible- when no one claims responsibility. This avenue give officers to another tool. Chief-Officers are trained to use discretion and use minimal to gain compliance in all situations.

Kent has similar ordinance

Majority in favor of bringing draft ordinance to full council.

Memo

Date: March 29, 2024
To: Public Safety and Emergency Management Committee
From: Tara Vaughn, City Prosecutor
Re: Proposed Changes to the Animal Code

The purpose of this agenda item is to brief the Counsel on proposed changes to the animal code which are intended to provide for more effective enforcement of the code as intended.

The current version of the City's animal code was enacted in 2014 and prohibits and punishes certain nuisance conduct by domestic animals, as well as dogs found to be dangerous or potentially dangerous. Dangerous dogs are those that have bitten or attacked humans or other domestic animals without provocation, inflicting serious injuries to the victim or death to the animal. Dangerous dogs also include dogs that have been found potentially dangerous and subsequently bite or attack humans or domestic animals. The animal code requires abatement of such violations by the owner or keeper to prevent further dangerous incidents. When violations occur and/or abatement is not successful in preventing further situations, the code allows the City to punish non-compliance by impoundment of the animal, removal of the animal from the City, euthanasia, and/or civil and criminal citations. These code provisions are essential to public safety.

Recently, an issue arose when a well-known animal law attorney was retained on a case and asserted that his interpretation of our animal code did not comport with due process as it did not explicitly allow for appeal of cited violations. While we do not agree with this interpretation, if the Court were to agree it would prevent the City from enforcing certain sections of the code as intended to ensure public safety.

Given the dangers posed by nuisance animals and dangerous/potentially dangerous dogs, we believe it would be best to explicitly elucidate an appeal process for sections where due process requires one. We would also like to take this opportunity to simplify and clarify certain sections that will better enable the City to enforce the provisions of the animal code. The draft ordinance contains the following alterations that staff hopes will enable Des Moines Police and animal control to enforce the code as it was intended:

Changes to the definition section of the animal code:

- Include a contracted animal control officer in the definition of animal control authority.
- Clarify and simplify the definition of “dangerous dog”; and removes the requirement that the City prove that a bite or attack was “aggressive.”
- Clarify the definition of “domesticated animals” to include “domestic animals” and make the language easier to understand.
- Clarify and simplify the definition of “potentially dangerous dog” so that it is easier for both officers and citizens to understand what actions would cause a dog to be declared potentially dangerous.
- Clarify the definition of “provocation” to make it easier for an officer to know whether a dog acted with or without provocation when determining if there is probable cause to declare the dog dangerous or potentially dangerous.
- Clarify and simplify the definition of “vicious” by including “vicious propensities” in the definition and making the terms easier for both officers and citizens to understand what actions qualify as vicious.

Changes to nuisance sections of the animal code:

- Clarify and simplify the list of violations that are prohibited and punishable under the code by labeling them public nuisances so as to match language used elsewhere in the code.
- Consolidate the sections relating to vicious behavior into one, more succinct section, enabling officers to better decide whether an animal's actions would qualify it as an animal with vicious propensities and enforce abatement.
- Give more specificity to what qualifies as an animal making unreasonable noise so that officers are better able to determine whether noise(s) are punishable under the code.
- Relabel an animal declared a public nuisance as a nuisance animal for simplicity and clarity, and change language requiring “convictions” to “committed” violations to comport with the legal language of civil infractions.

Changes to the appeal section of the animal code:

- Add language that makes the appeal process applicable to any section of the animal code that does not already provide for one.
- For the purposes of due process arguments that might be made by attorneys, allow an appeal to be filed up to 10 days after notice of the infraction, rather than 48 hrs.
- Lay out the legal burden of proof for appeals of notices of infractions.

Changes to dangerous and potentially dangerous dog sections of the animal code:

- Allow probable cause for a dangerous or potentially dangerous dog declaration to be made upon a complainant's oral statement, not just their written statement.
- Allow additional legal methods of providing notice of the declaration for a dangerous or potentially dangerous dog, to wit posting the notice at the owner or keeper's property or by leaving it with a person of suitable age at the property.
- Prevent legal issues on appeal by elucidating when service of a declaration is deemed completed.
- Allow police officers, in addition to animal control officers, to enforce immediate impoundment when a dangerous dog subsequently bites a person or domestic animal; allow officers to kill such a dog if it is uncatchable for impoundment.
- Clarify and simplify the section that provides for a defense to a dangerous/potentially dangerous dog declaration when the victim was unlawfully trespassing on the owner or keeper's property, or was provoking or abusing the dog.

Other changes to enable enforcement of the code as intended:

- Simplify the language on late fees for pet licenses.
- Add veterinary hospitals to the list of establishments who must comport with chapter licensing requirements and allows an appeal denial or revocation of their license.
- Add that a designee of the Chief of Police, in addition to the Chief himself, may enforce any other legal or equitable relief to abate violations of the animal code.
- Grant immunity to police officers, in addition to animal control officers, for their actions taken pursuant to enforcing the code.

The intent of the draft ordinance is to simplify the code to give proper notice to animal owners of conduct that is subject to punishment, to enable law enforcement and animal control to better enforce the provisions of the code, and to close obvious loopholes that would allow owners to sidestep liability for their animal's conduct when it endangers others or that threatens to public safety.

Legal staff proposes incorporating the changes attached below into a draft ordinance to be presented to counsel.

The Chief of Police shall follow the procedures set out in DMMC 8.04.260 in order to abate such animal. After the completion of such abatement procedures, an animal subject to removal from the City as provided in this section that is found within the City shall be impounded and treated as an unredeemed animal with no right of redemption by its owner or keeper.

8.04.260. Abatement of nuisances - Procedure - Appeal.

Such notice shall be served personally, or by postage paid certified mail, return receipt requested, or by posting at the last known residence or place of business of the owner or keeper. During the pendency of such appeal the animal shall either be confined or, as an alternative, the owner shall post adequate monetary security to guarantee he will confine the animal. The ~~Hearing Examiner~~Des Moines Municipal Court shall have the discretion to order either alternative, and shall have discretion to revoke the recognizance should the owner violate any provision thereof. In the event the animal is confined during the appeal to superior court, the owner shall, as a condition of such appeal, post a cost bond in an amount equivalent to the cost of maintaining the animal during the pendency of the action in superior court. Such bond shall be posted either within 10 days of commencing the action or within 10 days of revocation of the recognizance, such as the case may be.

(3) If the Des Moines Municipal Court finds by a preponderance of the evidence that the action taken or proposed to be taken by the City was justified, the order shall be upheld, and the owner or keeper shall be responsible for all costs and fees as designated in this Title.

(4) If the Des Moines Municipal Court does not find by a preponderance of the evidence that the action taken by the City was justified, the order shall be rescinded.

(35) Failure to fully comply with a final order shall be a misdemeanor and, further, the Chief of Police or the Chief's designee, shall be empowered to act to abate such nuisance or cruelty violation and the person failing to comply with such order shall become indebted to the City for all damages, costs, and charges incurred in the removal of such animal. Such damages, costs, and charges shall become a civil debt against the person failing to comply and shall be collectible in the same manner as any other civil debt owing to the City.

(46) Whenever such a public nuisance constitutes or reasonably appears to constitute an imminent or continuing danger to the public, the Chief of Police or the Chief's designee shall have authority to summarily and without notice abate the same by reasonable means. If the subject animal can be safely impounded, the Chief of Police or the Chief's designee shall do so, and the owner or keeper thereof shall become indebted to the City for all damages, costs, and charges incurred during the process of abatement.
